NATURAL HERITAGE

The natural heritage is also monumental

A fundamental part of the cultural heritage of Cáceres is its amazing natural environments. It is a wealth perhaps not as well-known as its extraordinary historical centre, but that contributes to making this city unique.

Parks and gardens

The Parque del Príncipe, the most important peri-urban space in Extremadura, the Parque del Rodeo, which shows a piece by sculptor, Juan de Ávalos, and the Cristina de Ulloa Garden, built in 1963 next to the busy Plaza de San Jorge, are the main parks and gardens of Cáceres.

Birdwatching

The Lesser Kestrel

Cáceres has a Special Bird Protection Zone for the Lesser Kestrel, with the largest urban reproductive centre of this species in the world. Other bird species also nest in the surroundings, an ideal city for birdwatching.
